

Job Title: Research Scientist

Department: Research & Development

Position description: Individual will incorporate his/her polymer science knowledge to research and develop products, processes, and applications; develop research plans, design experiments, and outline research procedures to be followed and identify or provide training to personnel to carry out research; demonstrate expertise in physical characterization of polymers, testing of polymers and thermoplastic elastomers; demonstrate expertise in processing and fabrication technology, including Barbender, Single-Screw, Twin Screw, and Injection Molding Machines; demonstrate expertise in more than one analytical technique; participate in meetings with customers and customer trials; write project reports and communicate with customers and fellow scientists by reports and presentation of work and expertise in the field of research within the organization and to customers with minimal guidance; direct one or more technicians as needed and establish daily and weekly routines necessary to meet project timetables.

Requirements: Master's degree in Polymer Science or Materials Engineering plus two years of experience in the job offered.

Location: McHenry, IL

Date posted: January 7, 2008

Please send resume and salary requirements to: GLS Corporation
Attn: Human Resources
e-mail - resumes@glscorp.com
fax - 815-759-6702